

Happy Birthday, Jordan

*Happy birthday to me.
Happy birthday to me.
Happy birthday dear Jordan,
Happy birthday to me...*

*Can you hear me singing?
It's okay!
My birthday is still April 5th
Even though I've been called away.*

*You know I never thought about today.
When I celebrated through the years,
That there would come a time
When my birthday would bring tears.*

*Why should I worry or fear
What tomorrows would bring my way
I was young and dreaming dreams
Living my life day by day.*

*I know you're missing me
Especially today
You counted on tomorrow
But tomorrow never came.*

*Celebrate my birthday
By remembering the joys
We had together in the past
When I was just a boy.*

*My wish for all of you this year
Is to wipe away your tears.
Remember I am still alive –
In Heaven – yet very near.*

*Don't count on more tomorrows
They may not come your way.
Each day is made for living.
Let Christ show you the way.*

*Don't waste your time looking,
Looking for joy or wealth or love.
God's love is all that matters.
And He sent it from above.*

*God gave His only Son to us.
And He died because of sin.
He rose to live forever.
And now I live with Him.*

*Don't count on more tomorrows
Listen as I say.
Love is all that matters.
And you may only have today.*

*Celebrate my birthday friends, and Family – don't cry.
You know that I am near you,
And I'll see you by and by.*

Cenora Winkler, March 2005